

Official Ending of War.

Peace is sometimes brought about by the intervention of a nation or ruler acting as mediator. Pope Urban VI acted as such in the years preceding the peace of Westphalia. In 1697 Sweden acted as mediator in the treaty of Ryswick between France on the one side and England, Germany, Spain and Holland on the other. In the war of 1814 Russia attempted to be the peace-maker, but Britain rejected her good offices. Austria helped to bring the Crimean war to an end. The United States sought to end the struggle of 1838 between France and Mexico. In 1890 the United States again intervened, this time between France and Great Britain on the one hand, and China on the other. In 1895 we tried to end hostilities between Spain and the republics on the west coast of South America, the proffer being accepted some years later.

When the Chickens Popped.

One of the best "tall tales" of the season comes out of the desert that lies—no pun intended—on the border of California. Even the village larks feel the heat here, says Mr. M. E. Edwards in Travel, and its reaction has added much to the sum total of desert tales. One old-timer who has a chicken farm near the Salton sea testifies as follows: Early one hot morning, just after dawn, he got up to feed his chickens. Pacing round in the yet obscure interior of his shack, he got what he supposed was his bag of chicken feed. Dumping its contents into the coyote-proof chicken yard, he went off to the house to cook his own breakfast, leaving the poultry to partake at leisure. Until late in the forenoon he busied himself at other chores, then went to look at his hens. They were all dead—and badly mutilated. "It's all my fault," he mournfully admitted. "I gave 'em seed pop corn by mistake, and when the sun got up it popped, and blew my chickens to pieces."

When the Door Sags.

It ruffles the tidy nature of the handy man to have to pull and jerk at his door to open it, and then to have to coax and push to shut it. A door should fit in its frame, like a stopper, in a bottle, he thought. A cursory examination disclosed that it stuck at the bottom. Of course, if the swelling had been at the top it would have been no easy to plane off the surplus. But at the bottom! He tried tightening the screws in the upper hinge, which were quite loose, but found the wood so soft that even longer screws would not hold. There seemed to be nothing to do but remove the upper hinge, dig out the soft wood and insert in its place a piece of new wood, which held the hinge firmly and prevented the door from sagging.

Living High in South Seas.

Living conditions in the South seas are quite the opposite to the popular idea conveyed in books of romance and adventure. Instead of being able to loiter under the shade of palms and having the fruits thereof drop into one's mouth, the daily needs are obtainable through the medium of hard toil. Living, if one desires to live according to the standards of the white man, is as expensive as in any other part of the world. According to those who have lived there for some time, "it is the last place in the world for a man without capital to come." Consular officers have a regular form warning all inquirers against attempting to settle there unless provided with ample funds, as there are but few opportunities for obtaining employment.

"Butterfly" Orchid.

The remarkable flower known as the "butterfly" orchid grows wild in South America and the West Indies, and is occasionally grown in hothouses in this country. It attracts attention by the beauty of its coloring, and the close resemblance of the open flower to a butterfly with striped upper and bordered under wings. Even the long proboscis and the antennae of a butterfly are mimicked. That mimicry is not a freak of nature. Scientists believe that its object is to protect the species by attracting beneficial influences, or by repelling those that militate against its preservation.

Odd Discovery.

A correspondent of Country Life (England) tells a curious story of a nest found inside a log of elm wood. The log was cut from the center of the tree and was to all appearance solid, and selected as perfectly sound for use in connection with pile-driving. After the first blow or two of the pile driver a piece flew off the side, revealing a cavity about 6 inches in diameter, and in the cavity the remains of a bird's nest and six pale blue black-spotted eggs. It is supposed that the nest had been made in a small hollow, overgrown by the wood, and hidden for 60 or 70 years.

These Useless Questions.

"Traveling man, eh?" "Yes." "Travel all over the country?" "Yes." "That takes you away from home a good deal, doesn't it?" "It does, since my home is too ponderous to take with me. It's a three-story brick."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Significant Silence.

"Five years ago he was poor. Now he's a millionaire." "Did he make his money honestly?" "There's no proof to the contrary, but I notice that he never contributes any personal reminiscences to the magazines."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A woman doesn't mind showing the white feather if white feathers happen to be fashionable.

We don't know why it is, but a man would rather hear you roast his enemies than hear you praise his friends.

You wouldn't get many lines in your forehead if your troubles didn't worry you any more than your troubles worry your friends.

When you get in bad don't waste any time trying to explain how it happened. People have already drawn their own conclusions.

If a man takes up physical culture he is worried about his health. But if a woman takes it up, she wants to reduce her circumference or increase it.

It may not be of much interest to anybody, but Judge "Fatty" Rawson is willing to back his rheumatism against all the weather forecasters in the country.

A girl can wear a dog collar around her neck and nothing on her chest and get away with it. But if a man tried it he would get free board in the foolish house.

The reason why a woman would rather cook a meal herself and eat at home than dress up and eat at a downtown cafe is because a small boy would rather stay at home and do the chores than go to a circus.

HOW CAN YOU TELL YOUR FAVORITE TOBACCO?

As Plain as the Nose on Your Face—Just Smell It

Smokers do not have to put tobacco in their pipes to find out if they like it. They can just rub the tobacco between the palms of their hands and smell it. The nose is an infallible guide to smoking enjoyment.

All smoking tobaccos employ some flavoring "to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves", to quote the Encyclopedia Britannica. Naturally, there is considerable difference in the kind of flavorings used, and the nose quickly detects this difference. TUXEDO Tobacco uses the purest, most wholesome, and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate. And the almost universal liking for chocolate in a great measure explains the widespread popularity of TUXEDO Tobacco.

Carefully aged, old Burley tobacco, plus a dash of pure chocolate, gives TUXEDO Tobacco a pure fragrance your nose can quickly distinguish from any other tobacco. Try it and see.
